Some Like It Hot in Bournemouth Lower Gardens

With temperatures set to be in the mid-twenties and a one-off viewing of the 1959 classic Some Like It Hot, Bournemouth is once again providing the perfect alternative to the World Cup at no cost! From 3pm, this Sunday Marilyn Monroe will be beamed into the Lower Gardens and turning up the heat.

Some Like It Hot (U Certified) is an Oscar award-winning comedy classic featuring two struggling musicians who witness a crime. The two men then go on the run to avoid being killed; the only way to remain protected is for the two to join an all girl band and end up dressed as women. Along the way the two men struggle with their own problems surrounding love, money and relationships.

Mark Smith, Director of Tourism said; "Some Like It Hot, perfectly compliments the great weather we are having and provides the public with a choice of free family entertainment for their Sunday afternoon."

"In Bournemouth, we feel it is important to consider everyone. We have a fantastic programme of events which we hope will offer a great alternative to the World Cup, for those that want something different."

The 'Open Air Cinema' is currently in the Lower Gardens and proving to be very popular, showing Wimbledon as part of Bournemouth Summer Live. The big screen will remain in the Gardens until 18th July as it will host a digital arts and animation event, Public Domain.

During this period, the 'Open Air Cinema' will continue to show family friendly films at various intervals. The film selections will be announced prior to being shown on the big screen.

Also kicking off this weekend, as part of Bournemouth Summer Live, is the three day Marching Bands event. Over this period local and national marching bands will perform around Bournemouth in various locations. For more information about Bournemouth Summer Live, please visit www.bournemouth.co.uk or www.bournemouthsummerlive.co.uk.
